STICK TO LIVE BANDS

Re "Little support for live music" (Mailbox, January 25)

I have to reply to the management's comment about bands at Barrymore's. The manager [Andrea Lanctot] mentions the lack of support for live bands. I've been going to Barrymore's for ages [...] and I did manage to see the Retro 80s live event in January with Daisy Train and Sam Hill. For the first time in a long time I finally thought Barrymore's is doing something right. The place was packed, both bands were good and there were people actually dancing up a storm. [...]

I think the right combination is the trick. People are certainly tired of the DJ scene. Once in a while is okay. But please, stick to the live band format. There are tons of people that love to see live entertainment and will support it. Just have the right bands and I assure you that you'll do fine. I know I am looking forward to the next Retro 80s live event.
